

Contribution ID : 65

Type : Oral

Benthic trace metal fluxes in the oxygen minimum zone off Peru

Wednesday, 5 September 2018 15:30 (15)

Benthic trace metal fluxes in the oxygen minimum zone off Peru

A. PLASS<sup>1</sup>, F. SCHOLZ<sup>1</sup>, C. SCHLOSSER<sup>1</sup>, A. W. DALE<sup>1</sup>, E. P. ACHTERBERG<sup>1</sup>, S. SOMMER<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>GEOMAR Helmholtz Centre for Ocean Research Kiel, Wischhofstraße 1-3, 24148 Kiel, Germany

(*correspondence: aplass@geomar.de)

Iron and several other trace metals (e.g. cobalt, zinc, cadmium) are essential micronutrients, required for life in the ocean. We present iron and other trace metal data for in situ benthic chamber incubations, sediment pore waters,

[1] Moore et al. (2013). Nature Geoscience, 6(9), 701

[2] Noffke et al. (2012). Limnology and Oceanography, 57(3), 851-867

[3] Hawco et al. (2016). Biogeosciences, 13(20), 5697

Position

PhD Candidate

Affiliation

GEOMAR

Email Address

aplass@geomar.de

Are you a SFB 754 / Future Ocean member?

Yes

Primary author(s) : PLAß, Anna (GEOMAR)

Co-author(s) : Dr DALE, Andrew (GEOMAR); Dr SCHLOSSER, Christian (GEOMAR); Prof. ACHTERBERG, Eric (GEOMAR); Dr SCHOLZ, Florian (GEOMAR); Dr SOMMER, Stefan

Presenter(s) : PLAß, Anna (GEOMAR)

Session Classification : 10 Biogeochemical Cycles: Feedbacks and Interactions

Track Classification : 10 Biogeochemical Cycles: Feedbacks and Interactions